Recyclable of The Month Plastic #1: PETE

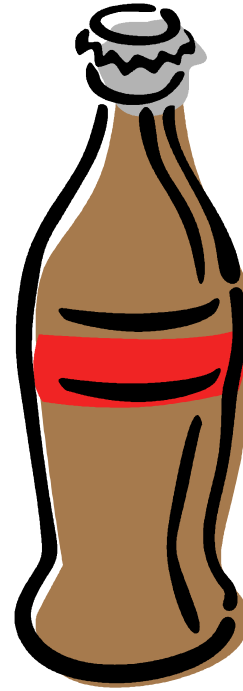

All plastics are marked with a number in a chasing arrow symbol to identify the plastic type.

According to Penn State research:
Plastic bottles do not biodegrade, especially when littered.

46 billion pounds of plastic material is produced every year, and only 3% is recycled. Most ends up as litter or in landfills.

Each year, millions of pounds of plastic wastes are dumped into our oceans, accounting for 69% of the plastic litter that washes up on our beaches

Researchers are working to create more biodegradable plastics.
